What was going on in your life when you heard from us?

My mother-in-law just passed away with cancer.

How did the process go, from your first call, to now at closing?

At first I was working with another realtor/investor that made us a unbelievable offer on the home with above board expectations. Come to find out this guy was up to no good. Then came along Marco with Surety Family Acquisitions. He gave us an offer that was slightly lower, but was honest and reliable from the start. Under the circumstances he was compassionate and not pushy at all. We decided to end up going with Marco after having the bad experience with the previous realtor/investor. There were some legal issues on our side we had to work through and Marco was very patient along the way. In the end we closed fairly quickly and glad we ended up choosing Surety Family Acquisitions.

What does your next chapter in life look like?

My family was able to move on and handle up on debt left behind by my mother-in-law, allowing family to begin life without her in a less stressful transaction than it could have been.

Is there anything we did to help make that transition to your next chapter better?

Yes, being patient and not pushy was what our family appreciated the most. While still making sure everything was in order for a timely close of this chapter of the family home.

On a scale of 1–10, how likely are you to recommend us to a friend or family member?

10 / 10

Was selling “as-is” really as simple as we explained? What surprised you about the process?

From what was in Family Surety Acquisitions control it was a simple process. As mentioned we had a legal situation that we had to resolve first and Marco and team were patient while still making sure things they could control were moving along.

What would you tell someone who is nervous about selling their house to us?

It is a huge decision to make especially when it comes down to the passing of a love one. There are so many companies looking to take advantage of such loss for their own gain. Listen to your gut and know you can trust Marco with Family Surety Acquisitions.

How would you rate the overall process?
